The mystery of the Corporales of Llutxent, also known as the Corporales of Daroca, has its origin in some manuscripts that were discovered in 1340 in which events that occurred during the reconquest are described. According to the documents, during a field mass in the Xiu's castle, the Muslims attacked the camp and the priest, who was from Daroca, hid the sacred forms wrapped in cloths. After the siege, when they went to retrieve them, they dripped blood. The soldiers, seeing the stained cloths, in a display of bravery recovered the castle. Before the miracle, and without agreeing, it was decided that the cloths would be kept where a mule stopped, since the soldiers were Aragonese. The mule went to Daroca and fell exhausted. According to legend, the path that the mule followed is the Corporales pathway, today used as a pilgrimage to Daroca from Llutxent. The thematic route starts from Llutxent and accesses the Corpus Christi Convent. It continues to the north of the region and borders the foothills of the Grossa Mountain range. It crosses several ravines that descend from the mountain and reaches Quatretonda, the church, with its hexagonal tower, is the monument of greatest interest. In Benigànim it is worth stopping in its historic center, especially in the Isleta neighborhood, with its narrow and irregular streets. Benigànim also stands out because with its set of five churches it represents the passage through the history of art, containing all the styles from the High Middle Ages to the first half of the 20th century. From here, after crossing the reservoir, we arrive at Bellús, the last town in the Vall d'Albaida where the Corporales pathway passes and continues along the Estret de les Aigües to the city of Xàtiva.

The Corporales of Llutxent pathway Point of connection with the General Crossing: Llutxent (km 151) and Bellús (km 115).

The Corporales of Llutxent pathway follows the tradition of one of the oldest and most surprising legends that are kept alive in the Valencian Community, considered as Intangible Heritage of the Vall d'Albaida.

This linear thematic route follows the regional section of Corporales pathway, since the pilgrims' path is much longer and continues to Daroca, in Aragon. It connects the towns of Llutxent and Bellús from the Corpues Christi Convent, passing through Quatretonda and Benigànim. It is very simple, without technical difficulty and suitable for families. It has a downward direction.
